KILLED AT BEAVER DAM.

A Negro and a White Man Quarrel and the Former is Dead.

Horace Barnes, the Well Known Turkman, is Killed by D. G. Gammons.

A DESPERATE FIGHT.

On Thursday last about two o'clock Horace Barnes, colored, of Beaver Dam, was shot and instantly killed by D. G. Gammons, section foreman of the N. & M. V. railroad at Beaver Dam. There had been some former bad feeling between the men and on the day of the tragedy a number of white men and negroes were about the depot when Roy Barnes, a stepson of Horace, became involved in a difficulty with John Gammons, a son of the man who did the killing. The men interlored, the stories differing as to who first took a hand in the boys' row. Hot words were exchanged and soon Barnes was advancing upon Gammons, who drew his pistol and fired. Barnes did not stop to reload and Gammons took advantage of this time by firing again. Barnes was hit in the chest and fell. He was not shot dead, but he was mortally wounded. He was taken to the hospital, but he died there.

law in the several States in which authority has been conferred upon the Commissioners to fix such rates, and ensuring them with rates charged by the railroad companies in Kentucky. It has been especially directed by the attention to cost rates.

Mr. W. H. Gibson, accompanied by his wife and little daughter, left tonight for Frankfort. It may be that the result of his investigation may be embodied in a bill in the Legislature, limiting the rates that may be charged for carrying coal in Kentucky.

To the Citizens of Ohio County. Now is the time that we should look after the interests of the Rough river navigation. The Government has already made an appropriation of $40,000 of which sum $15,000 or $20,000 have already been spent on the work. We should take advantage of the opportunity, call a convention of the citizens and request our Representative in Congress to urge up the work and get Congress to appropriate a sufficient amount to put in the lock and dam and the other work that is necessary to put Rough river in a navigable condition. If Congress makes an appropriation, we can get new locks and dams. The Government will be likely to go to work on them at once, and while every thing is going, easily get on the rough river and get in the locks on Rough river.

Other parts of the State are seeing at this time a very serious drought and it stands up to be a fearful calamity. Our resources are great. Put us in connection with Evansville and we can get a large amount of grain, North, East and the South. It would give an outlet for a vast amount of produce and form product of all kinds that have now to be hauled a great distance over extremely bad roads. It would open up a lumber market, and it would give a market for our valuable coal. Rough river runs through one of the richest belts of land in the State, and a belt, too, that is situated a considerable distance from Chicago and other good markets. It would reduce freight, and so save big money to every year. It would bring more money into the county. It would enhance the value of property. It would increase the value of the State. It would bring in more capital and give employment to a larger part of our people. It would be a great benefit to be considered, and it rests with us to suggest to say whether we will secure them.

The killing is very much regretted, as Barnes was a prosperous and energetic man and among the most highly respected of his race in the county. Gammons is a quiet, unassuming man, who has only lived in the county about twenty years, having come here from Carter county. He is an old Confederate soldier and while known to be thoroughly game and has been regarded as a good citizen and peaceable man. Due Barnes, who was engaged in the difficulty and who led the prosecution of Gammons, is a well known and respected citizen of the county. He is a man of the most expert and successful riders over on the American turf. He was much attached to his brother who was killed and is greatly troubled at the outcome of the difficulty.
